I wanna write

JAMES Franco was an unlikely guest at the lunch for Adam Davies' brilliant new novel, "Mine All Mine." But it turns out Franco dabbles in writing himself. The handsome "Pineapple Express" star [Review: Page 39] is moving to New York to pursue his MFA in fiction writing, though he coyly avoided giving Page Six an answer as to where exactly he plans continue his education. (He's said to have applied to Columbia, Brooklyn College and NYU.) He's shaking the right hands while he's here, though. Vanity Fair's Graydon Carter stopped at Michael's and met Franco, Davies and host Bobby Zarem before zipping off to huddle with Time Inc.'s Jim Kelly.
